

The Exile and return – what will your work be today?

You might want to draw a wall and a city and think of things that might make you sad to leave behind.

Or you might want to draw a new place and some of the new things you might like there.

Maybe you can use your blocks at home to tell the story again – leaving Jerusalem, crossing the river, coming to Babylon and starting a new life, then some of the people being able to go home again. I wonder what you would do?

Or you might want to sit and think, or to create something different – whatever is right for you today.
